

Short Biography – Geoffrey Robinson

Geoffrey Robinson is a Professor of History at UCLA. He has written extensively on questions of political violence, popular resistance, and human rights in Southeast Asia. His works include: The Dark Side of Paradise: Political Violence in Bali (1995); East Timor 1999: Crimes Against Humanity (2003); and “If You Leave Us Here, We Will Die”: How Genocide Was Stopped in East Timor (2010). Before coming to UCLA, he worked for six years at Amnesty International’s Research Department in London. In 1999, he served as a Political Affairs Officer with the United Nations in Dili, East Timor.